

THE CENTRE FOR RESEARCH IN INTEGRATED CARE IS LOOKING FOR PATIENTS OR CARE PARTNERS TO JOIN OUR PATIENT ADVISORY COUNCIL!

Who we are:

The Centre for Research in Integrated Care (CRIC) is a research lab which develops and implements patient-centred models of care for people with complex care needs.

The Patient Advisory Council is a group of individuals with lived experience of the healthcare system who oversee CRIC's work by informing research priorities and providing advice on research projects.

How to know if this opportunity is right for you:

- You live in New Brunswick
- You have lived experience with the healthcare system, either as a person with complex care needs or as a care partner
- You are interested in learning more about health research and contributing your perspectives to research

As a member of the patient advisory council, you would:

- Attend virtual monthly meetings
- Provide input on CRIC projects and activities
- Provide support for new members
- Participate in special projects and initiatives

If you are interested in learning more see the full ad here:

